Did You Know...?

- According to the U.S. Census Bureau, approximately 2.5 million people die annually in the U.S. from a wide range of causes and at all ages.
- A recent Life Insurance Marketing and Research Association (LIMRA) study reported that 52 million people who earn between $50,000 and $250,000 in annual income do not have any life insurance. Using LIMRA's numbers, 1,130 people in that income range die daily without life insurance.
- LIMRA's study also revealed that an additional 28 million people in that income range do not have adequate life insurance, which adds another 613 middle income people dying daily without enough insurance to provide for their families.
- A J.D. Power article, "Too Many People Lack Adequate Life Insurance Coverage," reported that studies show that 40% of all adult Americans have no life insurance and over 50 million are inadequately covered.
- Immediately after death, the deceased's estate will have to cover costs associated with his/her death, including embalming and preparation of the body by a certified funeral home or cremation at an approximate cost of $2,000. The cost of burial and basic casket averages $8,500 and the average cremation costs $1,500. This brings the total costs of preparing and disposing of the deceased's body to between $3,400 and $12,000. Add to that another $1,000 to $2,000 for the average cost for funeral home visitations and hearse procession, which brings the total immediate costs after death of a loved one to between $4,400 and $14,000.
- A deceased's estate will also be used to satisfy any debts which, in some instances, without life insurance, can completely deplete an estate and leave spouse's and heirs with little or nothing to assist them with their living expenses. If the deceased was the primary breadwinner, this can devastate a family.
